

MEDIA INVITATION

Paris, 4 April 2011

Transport for Society: Debating Mobility for the 21st Century

Global Summit of Transport Ministers to Meet in Leipzig,
Germany, from 25-27 May

Transport Ministers from the 52 member countries of the International Transport Forum at the OECD and beyond will gather for their 2011 summit from 25-27 May in Leipzig, Germany.

A unique platform for a global conversation on the future of mobility, the International Transport Forum at the OECD every year brings together ministers and senior policy-makers with top representatives from industry, research and civil society to debate a topic of major strategic importance for the future of transport.

The theme of the 2011 summit is "Transport for Society". Putting people first in transport will be the focus of the ministerial session as well as panel discussions and side events: How can the changing mobility needs and expectations of individuals and of society be met?

Media representatives are welcome to cover the 2011 summit. All sections of the programme are public, with the exception of the ministerial session, which will be followed by a press conference. The conference language is English; simultaneous translation will be provided in French, German and Russian. A fully equipped media centre will be available.

For accreditation to the International Transport Forum 2011 please register here.

For the programme and information on speakers, please visit the 2011 summit website.

Contact:

Michael Kloth
Head of Communications
T +33 (0)1 45 24 95 96
E michael.kloth@oecd.org