

Welcome and thank you for taking part in the International Transport Forum's second online debate "Transport & Climate Change: Ask the Experts"

In order to ensure the debate benefits from informed, constructive exchanges, we would like to remind you of five elementary guidelines to online debating:

Purpose

The purpose of the online debate is to provide a place where visitors ask questions, share their experiences and discuss ways to mitigate the climate change impact of transport activities. Please therefore keep your posts relevant to the forum topic.

Register first

Anyone may browse online contributions; however you must first be registered to post a contribution. Registration is free and you may register by using the links on the main forum page. Thereafter, your posts will only appear online once they have been screened by the Moderator.

Courtesy

The intention is for this on-line exchange to be an enjoyable experience for all users. While we all have opinions, please keep your posts polite and friendly and do not post messages that are unlawful or harassing in any way.

No advertising

This is a discussion platform and should not be treated as a place to post your adverts or promote your products and services. If you know of a worthy web site relevant to the discussion and would like to include it in your post, please contact the Moderator first.

Copyright

Please do not use this discussion platform to infringe on other people's patent, trademarks or proprietary rights.

If we all adhere to these five, fairly simple and logical guidelines, we should be able to have a constructive, profitable exchange for all of us interested in better understanding the policy and technology options available to make transport more sustainable.

Should you have any questions at any point regarding participation in the debate or contents of postings, please don't hesitate to consult the full Terms of Use or contact the Moderator. On behalf of the ITF team, thank you for your interest.
